Spiritual Formation

The Inquirer's class meets this week at 9:30 AM in the Westminster Room and by Zoom. We will continue our series on Peaceful Practices: a Guide to Healthy Communication in Conflict. The children's class will meet in Room 306. The Adult Bible Study will resume over the summer.

The peaceful practices we are engaging are:

Curiosity: Be curious, inviting diversity of ideas and opinions.

Discovery: Focus on what matters.

Engagement: Invite the best in yourself and others.

Dialogue: Listen together for insights and deeper questions.

Empathy: Seek to understand rather than persuade.

Authenticity: Speak from the heart, contributing your own thinking and experience.

Dignity: Consider power dynamics.

Transformation: Welcome creativity.

In honor of Tallahassee's Bicentennial, Rev. Davis Thomas was recognized as one of 200 people who laid the foundation for the growth of civil society we find in Tallahassee today. Read more about Davis and the rest of the list in the Democrat.

Richard Davis Thomas (1920 – 2016)

Rev. Richard Davis Thomas had served in Missouri and Arkansas before he, Virginia, and their five children arrived in Tallahassee in 1956 for him to be the lead pastor at First Presbyterian Church.

Reverend Davis Thomas was pastor at First Presbyterian Church from June 1956 to January 1968 First Presbyterian Church Tallahassee, Florida

Please consider signing up to help with a Sunday meal at Grace Mission over the summer months. We need volunteers 4 -6 pm May 12, June 9, July 14th and Aug. 11th. You can sign up here.

Pastor's Note

Influence is a funny thing.

As a mother, and partner to Jim, there was a particular type of influence that we desired for our children. We wanted the right group of friends, the academic influence that best shaped their particular gift set, and an environment that would help them develop into well-balanced, honest, kind, and faithful people. The church was the primary vehicle for that environment.

Our children would tell you we wanted an influence over our children that included significant limitations and radical boundaries. They would say, if the church doors were open, we were there... arriving first to unlock and leaving last to turn off the lights. We didn't give them an option, going to church was what we did.

Rev. Davis Thomas was nominated and named as one of the top 200 most influential people in Tallahassee and that story ran in the Democrat today. Davis served First Presbyterian Church from 1956-1968. Twelve years which marked a massive cultural, political, and economic shifts in our country. Davis began his ministry the year Elvis Presley first appeared on the Ed Sullivan show and Don't Be Cruel topped the charts. It was also the year IBM introduced the Hard Disc Drive (HDD). The Presbyterian Church was in a state of change much as it is now. Two years into his pastorate the then PC(USA) merged with the United Presbyterian Church to form the predecessor denominational body of the current PC(USA). Those changes included many perspectives and were accomplished by the influence of many.

First Presbyterian Church, Tallahassee, has been influenced by many people over time. When I think of how I have been influenced, one perspective I will take with me is the influence of Virginia Thomas. In sharing her testimony at the Wholeness and Healing worship service and with our confirmation class, Virginia said, "I just wanted God. And the names for God brought God to me. This list from the Psalms was to be a miracle."

Virginia taught me about a faith practice which includes reading the Psalms with a box of crayons and paying attention to all the names of God. That spiritual discipline has "brought God" to her. That witness was important for me to hear. I have been deeply influenced by her story and practice.

Jim and I look at one another sometimes and shake our heads wondering how we ever managed to "Get here." Not to Tallahassee, specifically, but a middle aged couple with grown children who are really good people. I am grateful for pastoral partners in ministry. For their influence and perspective. Last weekend, Jim both participated in the Enneagram retreat and climbed up the steeple to understand where we might have water intrusion. He loaded his truck for goods for Dogwood Acres and will take a group of parents and children to the FSU Circus this weekend.

This partnership in marriage and ministry reminds me of the scripture from 1 Corinthians that says "To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good." This week Jim came to church and packed up some of the office furniture we brought to Tallahassee as he will be taking a truck load to North Carolina next weekend while I go away with some seminary friends to celebrate 50th birthdays. Influence comes in many forms, sometimes sudden and unforgettable, other times, slow and steady – in fact, frequently imperceptible – until you look back and see how the water has carved the rock.

Here is what I know; I am grateful for partners in ministry and their behind-the-scenes influence – like Virginia to Davis and Jim to me.

God's peace, God's presence,
Anne
